

Leigh S. Guthrie, Ed.D.

Leigh Guthrie is the Acting Director, Corporate Communications and Chief Communications Officer for IDA. She serves as the senior communications strategist, spokesperson and adviser to the president and executive leadership.

Since joining IDA in 2020, Leigh has developed communication strategies for executives and led implementation across multiple communication platforms. She co-launched a video series and has served as managing editor of a weekly internal publication.

Prior to her time at IDA, Leigh served as Senior Communications Strategist at MITRE, where she provided communications consultation to members of the senior leadership team on strategic, organizational and staffing actions.

Leigh also previously served as Director of Corporate Communications and Centralized Support at Freddie Mac, where she oversaw company-wide communications and provided strategic support and counsel to the COO and other senior leaders. She led a team of communicators and partnered with the Vice President on communications to employees from the CEO.

Leigh holds a doctorate in higher education from the University of Georgia. She also holds a master's degree in community and college counseling and a bachelor's degree in psychology from Longwood University. She obtained an executive certificate in public leadership from the Harvard Kennedy School.

About IDA

IDA is a nonprofit corporation that operates three federally funded research and development centers in the public interest. IDA answers the most challenging U.S. security and science policy questions with objective analysis leveraging extraordinary scientific, technical and analytic expertise.

